ACROSS The ARTS

Claire Pitcher discovers theatres, galleries and arts venues to visit. This month: Oxfordshire Museum

OXFORDSHIRE MUSEUM

Introducing...

Pay a visit to the county museum, a large 18th century house in the historic town of Woodstock. Set out over 11 galleries, the museum displays art, archaeology, local and natural history pieces. This is where anyone can explore the county's innovative industries, from nano technology to nuclear power, as well as its past from the Jurassic to the Victorian period and beyond.

What does it cost?

Entry to the Oxfordshire Museum is free.

What they say...

If weather permits, don't forget to visit our award-winning, contemporary Garden Gallery and original Brew House where visitors can enjoy a varied, lively programme of colourful exhibitions. Through the seasons you can also enjoy the changing landscape of the walled garden – a peaceful tranquil escape from the busy town. Watch out for the dinosaurs too.

What can you see?

There's always plenty to see at the Oxfordshire Museum over the next couple of months. It's Didcot Mirror study day on 7th February, 9.30am to 5pm. This is a chance to hear leading academic experts discussing the mirror's purpose, significance and manufacture. Tickets are £25 per person. There's plenty to keep the little ones busy too, with the dinosaur gallery and the 3D archaeological display in The Introductory Galley.
